Author Introduction — Nida Fazli

Nida Fazli wrote this chapter. He was born on October 12, 1938, in Delhi and spent his childhood in Gwalior. He was a famous poet and writer in Urdu who wrote deep ideas in simple words.

In simple words: Nida Fazli was a well-known Urdu writer who wrote in easy language.

Main Message of the Chapter

This lesson tells us that nowadays, people don't feel sad for others' troubles. Earlier, people used to care even for animals, birds, and tiny creatures. But now, humans mostly think about themselves.

Main Points:

- Human sensitivity has reduced.
- Our bond with nature has broken.
- Our environment is being damaged.

How the Chapter Starts — Creation of the World

The author asks: How was the world made? Science has its own answer, and religious books have their own.

Important Point: The earth does not belong to just one being. Birds, humans, animals, rivers, mountains, and seas—all have equal right to this earth.

Word meanings:

- "वजूद" (Wujood) = Existence, being present
- "हिस्सेदारी" (Hissedari) = Right or share

But humans, with their intelligence, have built big walls; meaning humans have claimed everything as their own.

King Suleiman's Story

Who was Suleiman?

The Bible calls him Solomon, and the Quran calls him Suleiman. He was a king, about 1025 years before Jesus.

Special point: Solomon was not just king of humans; he was king of all animals and birds too, and could understand their language.

Word meanings:

- "लश्कर" (Lashkar) = Army
- "दफा" (Dafa) = Time
- "हाकिम" (Hakim) = Ruler

Ant Story:

One time, Solomon was passing by with his army. Some ants, hearing the sound of horses' hooves, got scared and told each other, "Quickly, go into your holes; the army is coming!" Solomon heard them, stopped, and told the ants, "Don't be afraid. God made me everyone's protector. I am not trouble for anyone, but love for all." The ants prayed for Solomon and he went on his way.

Word meanings:

- "दुआ" (Dua) = Prayer
- "मुहब्बत" (Mohabbat) = Love

Lesson: Even kings used to care about tiny creatures.

Sheikh Ayaz's Story — Ant Incident

Who was Sheikh Ayaz?

A great poet in Sindhi language. He wrote about his father in his autobiography.

Word meanings:

- "जिक्र" (Zikr) = Mention, to talk about
- "आत्मकथा" (Aatmakatha) = Autobiography

Story:

One day Sheikh Ayaz's father, after bathing at a well, sat down to eat. When he tore a bite of bread, he saw a black ant crawling on his arm.

Word meanings:

- "कौर" (Kaur) = Morsel
- "च्योटा" (Chyonta) = Ant
- "रेंगना" (Rengna) = Crawl

He immediately got up, leaving his food. His mother asked, "What happened? Didn't like the food?"

He replied, "No, it's not that. I made a home-owner homeless. I'm going to return it to its home at the well."

He had brought the ant from the well while bathing, and thought it wouldn't find its home. So he took it back to the well before eating.

Lesson: Shows his sensitivity and kindness.

The Injured Dog Incident

Once, a man saw an injured dog. In Islam, dogs are considered dirty, so he said, "Dirty dog, go away!"

The dog replied, "I am not a dog by choice, and you are not a human by choice. The creator made us both."

This means: We are what we are due to God, not our own will.

The man realised his mistake and cried for the rest of his life.

Word meanings:

- "मर्जी" (Marzi) = Wish
- "दुत्कारना" (Dutkaarna) = To scold

Lesson: Don't treat any creature badly.

Mahabharata Example

In Mahabharata, a dog stayed with Yudhishtir until the very end. Shows how animals were respected.

Mother's Advice to the Author

As a child, the author's mother used to say:

1. After sunset, don't break leaves from courtyard trees—they'll cry.
2. At lamp-lighting time, don't pick flowers—they will curse you.
3. If you go to the river, salute it—it'll be pleased.
4. Don't trouble pigeons—they're dear to Prophet Muhammad.
5. Don't disturb the rooster—it wakes everyone up before the priest.

Word meanings:

- "दरिया" (Dariya) = River
- "सलाम" (Salaam) = Greeting
- "मज़ार" (Mazaar) = Shrine
- "गुम्बद" (Gumbad) = Dome
- "इजाज़त" (Ijazat) = Permission

Her mother saw life in everything and respected nature.

Pigeons' Story — Gwalior

Story Start:

In Gwalior, the author's house had a veranda with two ventilators. Pigeon couple made a nest there.

Word meanings:

- "दालान" (Dalaan) = Veranda
- "रोशनदान" (Roshandan) = Ventilator

One time, a cat jumped and broke one of the eggs. The author's mother tried to save the second egg, but it slipped and broke.

Word meanings:

- "उचककर" (Uchak-kar) = By jumping

Pigeons became worried, flapping around with sad eyes. Seeing their sadness, the mother started crying.

She kept a fast all day to ask God for forgiveness for this mistake, ate nothing, only prayed.

Word meanings:

- "फड़फड़ाना" (Fadfadana) = To flutter
- "गुनाह" (Gunah) = Sin
- "रोज़ा" (Roza) = Fast

Lesson: The mother was so upset by the pigeons' grief that she didn't eat the whole day—shows sensitivity to animals.

From Gwalior to Mumbai — Change

Change in place and time means people change too.

In Versova, Mumbai (Now):

Earlier: Versova was full of forests, birds, animals.

Now: It has colonies and buildings. Many animals have lost their homes.

Word meanings:

- "परिंदे" (Parinde) = Birds
- "बस्ती" (Basti) = Colony or settlement

Some animals left the area, some stayed with temporary shelters.

Pigeons in the Author's Flat

Pigeons built a nest in the author's flat. Their babies are small; parents feed and care for them, coming and going many times a day.

But, the pigeons bothered the author and his wife by breaking things, making the flat dirty, even disturbing the library.

Word meanings:

- "लाइब्रेरी" (Library) = Book room

So, his wife covered the nest area with a net and moved the baby pigeons elsewhere. The window was closed so pigeons couldn't enter.

Why the net? Because the pigeons were repeatedly coming in, making messes and damaging books.

Now, pigeons sit silently outside the window all night, but neither Solomon is there to understand their sadness, nor the author's mother to share it and pray.

Word meanings:

- "खामोश" (Khamosh) = Silent
- "आशियाना" (Ashiyana) = Home or nest

Deep Meaning — Lessons we Learn

Main Message:

1. Sensitivity is dying — earlier, people were kind even to tiny animals; now, people only think for themselves.
2. Humans damage nature for their own growth — cut forests, took away animals' homes.
3. Contradiction: The author criticises what he himself does; his mother cried for pigeons, but author removed them.
4. Pollution and environment: Urbanisation has reduced places for animals.

Bond with Nature:

When man troubled the sea, the sea became angry and destroyed three ships like balls; meaning, nature takes revenge if harmed.

Situation now:

Before: People respected trees, rivers, animals.

Now: Towns have destroyed forests, animals are homeless, humans drive animals away for their own comfort.

Answers to Important Questions

1. How was King Solomon different from other kings?

- Solomon was king not just of humans, but of all animals and birds. He understood all their languages—other kings did not have such sensitivity.

2. Why did Sheikh Ayaz's father stop eating?

- He saw an ant on his arm, realised he'd brought it away from its home at the well. He stopped eating, returned the ant to the well, then ate.

3. Why did the author's mother fast a whole day?

- Both pigeon eggs were broken—one by a cat, one while saving it—which she felt was a sin, so she fasted to ask for forgiveness.

4. Why did the author's wife put a net on the window?

- To prevent pigeons from coming in, dirtying the flat, and spoiling books.

5. What lesson do we learn from this chapter?

- Live together with all; care for others' happiness and problems; don't see yourself as the greatest; avoid damaging nature; feel love towards nature.

Theme/Teaching

- Makes us realise how humans harm nature for progress.
- Shows the bad results of disturbing nature.
- Teaches us to respect all living beings—animals, birds, rivers, trees.

Important Points to Remember

- Nida Fazli — author
- Solomon (Suleiman) — King who understood all languages
- Sheikh Ayaz — Sindhi poet who wrote about the ant incident
- Gwalior — where pigeon's eggs broke
- Versova, Mumbai — where author lives now

Conclusion

This lesson makes us think about how much harm we cause nature for our own convenience. Earlier, people were sensitive to even tiny animals; now, we care only for ourselves.

Remember: The earth is not just for humans, every creature has equal rights on it.
